What is the current state of research into, and development of a treatment of, Choroideremia?

In 2020, the PRO RETINA, France Choroideremia and Retina International will once organize a conference for Choroideremia patients and people interested in the disease. The objective is to give an update on the research into new options regarding diagnosis and treatment.

Initial studies of a gene therapy have already been done worldwide.
Gene therapy has already been applied in Germany.

We will also report on vision aids and counseling options. This is also an excellent opportunity to exchange experiences in dealing with the disease. Our speakers and moderators will be happily standing by to answer your questions and remarks.

All presentations will be translated by interpreters in English, France and German.

Attendance costs amount to 100 EUR for members of PRO RETINA Non-members and international guests can book an attendance ticket for EUR 75,00, accommodation can be booked separately in the H+
